

Survey: 59% of child care providers may no longer accept subsidies

In a recent survey of 159 registered and licensed home childcare providers in Vermont we found that 59 percent of providers said they would consider retracting their rate agreement with the state and no longer taking families receiving assistance.

Q2. If a union is enacted for home childcare providers in Vermont, and the only way to avoid paying dues and/or agency fees was to no longer accept families on subsidy, would you consider retracting your rate agreement with the state and no longer taking families receiving assistance?
