> Getting rid of the deposit on bottles not only will increase on pollution but it will also take jobs from those that are actually taking in the bottles and collecting them for recycling. recycling also eliminates a lot of plastic waste we will also lose a lot of donations to the organizations that are doing this state justice. I get help from some of these agencies that are being helped by these bottle redemption areas and having the five cents on the bottles. I think that it should stay in place. If you take this away your creating a larger problem than what you seem to think that it already is. I vote to keep the 5 cent deposit on soda and beer. I also agree that there should still be a $.15 deposit on all wine and spirits.
