COGNATE

This picture shows the solar array during construction. It covers approx. 14 acres.

This photo illustrates two options. On the right are the condominiums that were built on a hay field when my Grandfather's estate sold a large portion of the farm to pay heirs and the IRS. On the left is a portion of the solar array that is providing an income stream to my generation and making keeping the land in farming more feasible. (In the middle is the firewood we are splitting, it came from the clearing necessary to prevent shading of the solar panels, the wood will heat the hot water we use to milk our cows.

The land on the right will never be used for farming again, the land on the left is producing clean electricity and can go back into crop production when the lease is over.
