PINNACLE Comments from the past year!

VERMONT
VETERANS'
HOME

- It's not like a nursing home. You have the dining rooms, plenty of things to do outdoors and fish pond. It's like a campus type of thing & not like a nursing home.
- The cleanliness is huge. For it being a facility that takes care of that number of people, especially those with dementia, the place never smells like urine or feces. The rooms are kept spotless.
- All of the activities there are wonderful. I was there last weekend & we were doing all kinds of things.
- The staff is professional all the way around and I like the friendliness of the staff.
- They answer me in a very welcoming way. I never feel that they're thinking, oh she is calling again, I never feel that way. I feel respected as his primary caregiver person who is trying to make his life as comfortable as it can be at this point.
- The staff is exceptional. He gets along with the staff. They joke back & forth which is remarkable because he has increasing dementia. He may not remember where he is but he still jokes around with them. They're very good about that.
- They explain things so you understand. They work with you & take time to talk to you.
- They have a Namaste room to chill them out. I've been massively impressed with everything going. The staff is extremely respectful. They keep me informed with everything going on with her med changes & anything like that. You can tell what the people who work there do which is important to me because I'm a nurse.
- I appreciate the level of care & love that they showed.
- The staff is incredibly dedicated. They go beyond the call of duty.
- They treat everybody like they're family.
- It has a home-like feeling.

As is generally the case, jobs and the economy are seen as the most important problem facing the state of Vermont. The recent Castleton Poll found one-third of all respondents citing the economy as the most important issue facing the state. This is the issue most on Vermonter's minds. BRATTLEBORO – A new economic study of Windham and Bennington counties begins with this succinct assessment: “Southern Vermont is in trouble.”

In Bennington there is a two year backlog of homes for sale because people want out, and no one wants to move in.

Our current business climate has put on the brakes.

Why is Our Veterans' Home Important?

VERMONT
HOME

The Veterans in your Vermont Veterans' Home have answered the call to defend and protect our great nation. These individuals have fought in historic battles overseas such as Tarawa, The Battle of the Bulge, Hue City, and Marjah. Today our Home has warriors from WW II to Desert Storm.

There is truly no peacetime in the military. You are either preparing for war or conducting it. Several of our Veterans have participated in Humanitarian Operations and actions during the Cold War. Events such as these include many unspeakable horrors which many inaccurately ascribe only to combat.

Vermont has a population that is approximately 8-10% Veteran. Most of these men and women volunteered to serve so others could remain home and carry on with their lives and families.

Of the individuals who have unselfishly served from the great State of Vermont, we at The Vermont Veterans' Home serve those with the greatest need.

Fulfilling the Promise

Why is a Veterans' Home Important?

VERMONT
HOME

"The cost of honoring our Veterans can never equal the price already paid"

Daniel R. Landry

We have to honor and support our Vets in any way we can!

What they have done for us can never be paid for enough!

Mike Oltedal

"The desire in helping veterans reflects a fitting gratitude for their service rendered and the sacrifices they shouldered".....

Joseph L. Pires

The Vermont Veterans Home must be supported, fully funded and yes even be a line item on the annual State budget right up and until the lights go out in the Vermont State capital and the doors are locked because Vermont is broke and no longer exits. Stephen A. Leach

That is the mission embraced by the Vermont Veteran's Home and the basis of its motto -- "Fulfilling the Promise" — often repeated by all at the home who serve veterans tirelessly each and every day.

We don't have an option to do otherwise.

David Van de Water

Fulfilling the Promise

Why is a Veterans' Home Important?

VERMONT
HOME

Col. Guinee said it best “unless we take care of those that stepped forward to defend us in the past, don't expect future generations to do the same” Jim White

The Vermont Veterans Home should be considered a priority for the state.

We must, as residents of the state and citizens of this county find the compassion to support the ones who risked it all to protect the constitution. We should feel honored to support these brave men and women in their time of need.

Dalton Blackwell

The Vermont Veteran's home is a symbol of how the State has recognized early on in its existence, the need to recognize the importance and value the Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and, Marines have brought honor and dignity to many generations of Vermont citizens and the great nation we are a part of.

Jane Lavioletta

Your (our Vet home) mission acknowledges the tremendous sacrifices our Vermont Veterans, as well as their families have endured and recognizes them for their noble service to our nation. I know that when I visit our home it is most gratifying to see the wonderful environment that our residents have. Knowing that veterans live in an atmosphere that reflects dignity and respect reflects a true home for each of our Veterans. Shame on anyone who would not support our home. We shouldn't have this issue every budget year!! Shameful. Joe Gilmond

It's great to be surrounded by people who care!! It is one of the beautiful things of our democratic society to honor the service and dedication of our veterans with sincere care when they reach the end of their lives. Honor is and everyday term at the Vermont Veterans home just ask anyone who resides there. Bruce E. Charbonneau

Dear Ms. Jackson,

I read in THE BUZZ WORD you are looking to get feedback about the uniqueness of The Vermont Veterans' Home. My father was recently one of your residents. My mother and I are always talking about Dad and his time living there and we are constantly remembering the little and big things that so impressed us. We cringe to think about what Dad's final months would have been like if he had not been living at the home.

Prior to Dad's placement, the VVH was just an interesting building with pretty flags outside or an article in the paper to read. It took his residing there for us to see what an amazing place it is and all that it offers to those who have given so much for our country. Seeing the range of veterans gives one a new appreciation of those who have served in our military. When talking about Dad to others, we share our experiences and praise the care he was given in every way.

Enclosed you will find some the reasons we found the Veterans' Home such a special place. We hope the legislature sees the need and has the wisdom to fund the home to maintain its level of excellence. Our veterans have earned it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen Praetorius

The Vermont Veteran's Home

A Special Place

My father was recently a resident at the home for 3 months and it changed our lives. Sadly Dad passed away at the end of June, but his last three months were filled with good times greatly outnumbering the difficult ones. The loving care he received helped him deal with the challenges he faced every day.

Dad was 91 years old, suffering from COPD and dementia. He was living at home with my mother. On a rainy day, Dad went out to get the mail. He fell and broke his hip socket in many places and his femur as well. Amazingly he made it through surgery and went to a local rehab facility. Dad was doing well, but in January he tried to walk unassisted and fell. There was a new femur break and 6 weeks of two person assist. Depression set in big time and the dementia ran wild. Dad lost a great deal of his ability to find words and his communication skills were limited. His frustration overwhelmed him. Dad also developed aspiration risk. Things were spinning out of control. We met frequently with the administration and felt his needs were not being met. They viewed him as a long term care patient and gave up on his therapies.

Dad wanted out of the rehab center and felt he was going to die if he stayed there. Spring was coming and we knew a change was needed. Dad, Mom and I had previously visited the Veterans' Home and so off the family went again to see Gary Yelle and discuss Dad's needs. Gary gave us hope; something we were in short supply of. We were impressed with all the services that could be offered, but more importantly had an overwhelming feeling of warmth, friendliness and kindness that flowed throughout the building. We loved the grounds and knew Dad's wish to see the summer had a chance of being fulfilled in this new setting.

Dad was placed in the dementia unit (Brandon), which was scary and upsetting for him, but turned out to be a blessing. The quality of his care by everyone was amazing. He was treated with dignity and respect and felt valued as a person again. The staff took time to talk with him and find out about his life. He had his identity and his dignity back. Constant assessment resulted in many services being started and Dad was able to set his own goals in some instances. The staff that supplied Dad with his therapies knew how to relate to a stubborn, independent person like Dad. They got the best out of him. In time he was talking again, walking with assistance, socializing, and enjoying the activities. He got to have a garden and enjoyed the beautiful spring with the sunshine of his face. Dad had some control over his life again.

During this entire time, Dad was not the only recipient of the Veterans' Home support. His family could not have gotten through everything without the kindness, reassurance, and guidance of Dr. Salizar, the nurses and the home's staff. Everyone made a difficult time less stressful.

Sadly, Dad passed away at the end of June. He had been taken to the hospital on a weekend due to recurring pneumonia. After heart wrenching discussion with doctors and Dad himself, it was decided that Dad wanted to fight the illness with just his body. His only wish was to go back to his home and "his girls" – the Veteran's Home and his nurses.

Attached you will find some of the specific reasons why we found the Vermont Veterans' Home such a special place for Dad. You enabled us to make many fond new memories with him which we will cherish.

- The frequent and open communication between the staff and our family. My mother and I were kept apprised of any concerns and our input was sought to better understand Dad.
- The approach of redirection and talking to calm agitation rather than medication was something we greatly appreciated.
- The variety of activities offered encouraged Dad's socialization. They also provided us with many opportunities to join him in the experience. This built wonderful memories and kept him a part of our family life.
- The care that is taken in maintaining the building and grounds make it a pleasant place to spend time. Dad loved feeding the deer and fish and sitting in his wheelchair on the porch or patio/garden.
- The unlimited support of the family through what was a very difficult time. The staff always had time to answer our questions or hear our concerns. Dr. Salazar and the nurses prepared us as best as they could, for Dad's failing health and the decisions which would have to be made.
- The immediate follow through when a priest's visit was requested. Father Holden brought us great comfort.
- The most amazing memory is that the night before Dad died, many nurses came in before they left to say "good night" to him. He never felt alone and uncared for.
- The Veteran's Home remains a part of our family and always will. Visiting and talking with staff helps ease the loss.

The Vermont Veterans' Home

- There is a real sense of community in which everyone watches out for and cares about each other and is treated with kindness and respect-residents and staff alike. As you walk the halls you can feel it.
- The professionalism of the staff in handling the difficult situations some residents present.
- The nursing staff treated delicate personal needs in such a way that the residents' dignity was always respected.
- The opportunity to be among peers and share the experience of being a veteran. For Dad, it provided an anchor on bad dementia days.
- The helpfulness of the admission office and the business staff in completing paperwork and taking care of financial details so that the family's time and energies could be focused on their loved one.
- The flexibility of the staff, so that family time was the priority. The unrestricted visiting hours made life more natural.
- The ratio of nursing staff to residents enabled Dad's needs to be met efficiently and quickly. In the previous facility there were times when the floor was understaffed resulting in long wait times.
- The range of services offered and the constant monitoring by the providers to reassess and modify goals. Dad was able to have input and express what he wanted and needed, as was his family.
- The immediate addressing of psychological crisis. When extreme depression hit, Dad was able to see the doctor, psychologist or social worker immediately. In the previous facility he had to wait 2 weeks to see a psychologist.
