

On March 14th, 2018, at 10:00 AM, the students of Stowe Middle/High School participated in the National School Walkout being organized by the youth division of the Women's March. This walkout, held for 17 minutes in honor of the 17 lives that were lost in Parkland, Florida exactly one month ago, is an opportunity for students to raise their voices for change and hope in the face of devastating violence.

We as the students of Stowe Middle/High School no longer feel safe in our school. We believe that students, faculty, and staff have the right to come to school every day in the expectation that their lives are being protected. Since 2000, more students have been killed in school shootings nationwide than are currently enrolled at Stowe High School. The rise of gun violence in schools is a deeply disturbing trend against which our government has not taken sufficient action.

It is time for change. We want to learn; we want to be safe. We want our local, state, and federal governments to know that students are taking action in the absence of meaningful gun reform legislation. Many of us will be voting in 2020. Some of us can vote now. Gun violence in schools is quite literally a matter of life and death, and we say: Enough is enough.
