
A Red Flag Law can prevent tragedies like the Parkland school shooting

1 message

Ali Hartman, Vermont Moms Demand Action <info@everytown.org>

Fri, Feb 16, 2018 at 1:49 PM

Reply-To: info@everytown.org

Honor the victims of the Parkland school shooting with action for Vermont students.
Add your name to the call for a Red Flag Law in the Green Mountain State >>>

Gun Sense Supporter,

Watching children running out of their school with their hands above their heads on TV on Wednesday was horrifying.

As a mom of two young children, seeing that footage rocked me. I think every person watching the news saw themselves and their families in the faces of the Parkland community as they stood grieving outside of Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School. I want to feel confident dropping my kids off at school, knowing that they will come home for dinner, safe and sound. Instead, I'm wracked with fear.

This is not normal and mass shootings can be prevented when states enact effective policy solutions, like a Red Flag Law. Our lawmakers could pass this life-saving legislation this year. A strong Red Flag Law would create an "Extreme Risk Protection Order" that could be requested by family members and law enforcement, empowering Vermonters to prevent warning signs from turning into tragedies. Join me in asking lawmakers to pass this life-saving policy in Vermont so that schools are places of learning, and not places to be afraid of gun violence.

Add your name to our call on lawmakers: HONOR PARKLAND VICTIMS AND PASS A RED FLAG LAW IN VERMONT. With just one click, your name will be added automatically.

