

Podcast: Burlington mayoral race

Inside the 2018 Legislature • The Trump Effect: DC Reporting • Nationally recognized EB-5 reporting • Teflon Town: ChemFab's toxic legacy

Two new school threats follow Fair Haven lockdown

By Xander Landen
Feb 20 2018 3 Comments

Schools in Colchester and Fairfax this week confronted threats amid the fallout from last week's arrest of a teenager in Fair Haven, who is now facing charges that could carry a life sentence.

On Monday, Colchester High School student Alex Cardosi, 18, allegedly told another student he was going to "shoot up the school," according to the Colchester Police Department.

A mugshot of Jack Sawyer. Photo courtesy Vermont State Police

Cardosi was cited by police for disorderly conduct and is scheduled to appear in Chittenden Superior criminal court on Thursday, the department said in a statement on Facebook.

"A police presence was in place at CHS and adjacent Colchester Middle School and Malletts Bay School as acknowledgement of the added anxiety this situation had placed on our affected students, parents and staff," it said.

In Franklin County on Tuesday, Bellows Free Academy Fairfax went into "lockdown" and sent students home early after administrators were informed of a threatening message sent to a student via Facebook.

Police officers were informed of the threat to the school and "secured" the person suspected of sending of the message, according to a recorded message from BFA Principal John Tague sent to parents in the morning.

"As the investigation continues and questions remains, we feel it is necessary to send students home. We are currently in a lockdown situation. Students were dismissed around noon," he said.

Both schools were expecting to be open on Wednesday, though officials in both cases said the investigations were ongoing.

Last week, police arrested Jack Sawyer, 18, for allegedly plotting a mass shooting at Fair Haven Union High School. Police say he had recently purchased a 12-gauge shotgun along with ammunition and wrote down his preparations for carrying out his plot in a notebook titled "The Journal of an Active Shooter."

Sawyer is facing charges of attempted aggravated murder, attempted first-degree murder and attempted aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, and if convicted could face life in prison.

Colchester Police Lt. Douglas Allen said Cardosi received only a citation because there was no evidence of anything beyond a verbal threat.

Popular Stories

- UVM students call for resignations over white pride signs
- Fairfax school goes into lockdown over threat; suspect 'secured'
- Hallquist officially begins bid to become US' first transgender governor
- Two new school threats follow Fair Haven lockdown
- Suit claims sexual harassment by Northshire business owner
- Protesters call for lawmakers to act on gun laws
- Olympics: Diggins wins gold; biathletes aim at gun violence
- Vermont ski legend lives on in Shiffrin's Olympic quest
- Olympics: Pelkey steps up; Shiffrin drops out
- Members consider taking ownership of Hermitage Club

Recent Stories

- Public asks lawmakers to reconsider, slow down education finance reform
By Elizabeth Hewitt
- Saliva Testing Round II: Second House panel weighs legal challenges
By Alan J. Keays
- Ban on coyote-hunting contests moves ahead after lengthy debate
By Colin Meyn
- Kids' meal bill slimmed down by compromise
By Mike Faher
- ACLU sues Burlington police over public records access
By Elizabeth Gribkoff
- House approves merger of lottery and liquor control
By Xander Landen

“A general statement of ‘I’m going to do a bad thing’ — there’s not a lot of laws that cover that,” Allen said.

Another student who made more than a dozen threats of violence that shut down South Burlington High School last year was sentenced on Tuesday to five years probation. Prosecutors said they had found no indication that Josiah Leach, 19, intended to carry out his threats.

Rob Evans, the safety liaison officer for Vermont’s Agency of Education, said his department doesn’t keep data on the number of threats schools act on each year.

But in the current climate of fear caused by ongoing high-profile acts of violence around the country, he said, Vermonters are more attuned to possible threats.

“I think we see after any tragedy or horrific event that for a period of time there is this heightened awareness,” Evans said. “People for all the right reasons are now really, really paying attention to all the things that we are seeing on social media.”

Filed under:

C CRIMINAL JUSTICE

Tags: Bellows Free Academy Fairfax, Colchester High School, Jack Sawyer, shooting threats

[\[REPORT AN ERROR \]](#) [\[UPLOAD A DOCUMENT \]](#) [\[TIP DROP \]](#)

About Xander

Xander Landen reports on business and the economy for VTDigger. Before he moved to Vermont in 2018, he lived in New Hampshire and covered crime, courts and local government for The Keene Sentinel. Xander got his start in public radio, writing and producing stories for NPR affiliates including WBUR in Boston and WNYC in New York. While at WNYC, he contributed to an award-winning investigation of how police departments shield their misconduct records from the public. He is a graduate of Tufts University and his work has also appeared in PBS NewsHour and The Christian Science Monitor.

✉ Email: xlanden@vtdigger.org

Latest stories by Xander

- House approves merger of lottery and liquor control
- Two new school threats follow Fair Haven lockdown
- Fairfax school goes into lockdown over threat; suspect 'secured'

View all stories by Xander Landen

[RECENT STORIES]

E EDUCATION

Public asks lawmakers to reconsider, slow down education finance reform

Podcast & Video

The Deeper Dig
Burlington Candidates in Conversation

 AARP PodBean

[\[Related Story \]](#)

2/15/18 Burlington Mayoral Foru...
 February 15, 2018
 Echo Leahy Center for Lake Champlain
 Miro Weinberger (D) Incumbent
 Infinite Candidates (I)
 Carina (I)
 Welcome, Marie Houg... AARP Vermont State President
 Fran Stobierski - moderator

[\[Related Story \]](#)

Check out the Writers for Recovery podcast series here:

Commentary

Steve May: The Vermont premium

Walt Amses: The price of a child’s life

Saliva Testing Round II: Second House panel weighs legal challenges

Ban on coyote-hunting contests moves ahead after lengthy debate

Kids' meal bill slimmed down by compromise

ACLU sues Burlington police over public records access

House approves merger of lottery and liquor control

Rama Schneider: Crisis, priorities and guns

Susanne Young: Commonsense tax reform

Joe Benning: Guns and sense

Kelly Hedglin Bowen: Are we powerless?

Politics

House approves merger of lottery and liquor control

By Xander Landen

Hallquist officially begins bid to become US' first transgender governor

By Dave Gram

Protesters call for lawmakers to act on gun laws

By Elizabeth Hewitt

Margolis: Democrats hard-pressed to find officeholder to challenge Scott

By Jon Margolis

The Deeper Dig: Burlington candidates in conversation

By Mike Dougherty

Pownal considers appointment of town clerk

By Jim Therrien

VTDigger.org requires that all commenters identify themselves by their authentic first and last names. Initials, pseudonyms or screen names are not permissible.

No personal harrassment, abuse, or hate speech is permitted. Comments should be 1000 characters or fewer.

We moderate every comment. Please go to our FAQ for the full policy.

VTDigger

News in pursuit of truth

ABOUT

Our Story
Contact Us
Underwriting
Site Policies
Donate

NEWSROOM

Ellen Bartlett	Cate Chant
Tiffany Danitz-Pache	Cory Dawson
Mike Faher	Michael Dougherty
Dave Gram	Anne Galloway
Mark Johnson	Elizabeth Hewitt
Xander Landen	Alan J. Keays
Colin Meyn	Jon Margolis
Mike Polhamus	Kevin O'Connor
Jim Welch	Jim Therrien

BUSINESS STAFF

Christina Griffin
Christopher Kaufman
Ilstrup
Phayvanh Luekhamhan
Theresa Murray-Clasen
Florencio Terra

VTDIGGER

A publication of Vermont Journalism Trust

26 State Street, Suite 8
Montpelier, VT 05602

contact@vtdigger.org
(802) 225-6224
www.vtdigger.org