Dear Fellow Vermonter,

Wildlife trafficking, the fourth largest illegal trade in the world, is an escalating $20 billion a year global crisis. The heinous poaching and trade of body parts is pushing many iconic animals, such as elephants, rhinos and giraffes, to the brink of extinction. While federal law attempts to limit the international trade of these animals, it does nothing to regulate sales once the animal parts have been smuggled into the United States through loopholes on the federal level.

Vermonters say NO MORE.

There is still time to save the remaining wild animals and help them recover, but we need your influence to act NOW! We must pass legislation in Vermont to restrict the sale of products and parts from imperiled wildlife species, joining the now 10 other states that have already enacted similar laws.

Please pass H.99/S.29 THIS SPRING!

As a graduate of Norwich University and your fellow Vermonter, I appeal to your common sense and compassion to finally pass this law in our great state of Vermont. You will be hearing from me to follow-up in support of this bill to pass and then on to Governor Scott's desk.

Respectfully Submitted,

/s/
