Overview

This report compiles the findings of the Vermont Financial Literacy Working Group (FLWG) in response to the Financial Literacy Commission’s 2017 recommendation to create of an “interagency task force to review and evaluate current state policies and programs and coordinate new outreach to promote these efforts.” The report also offers several recommendations to improve how Vermont State government provides personal finance education resources to citizens.

Process

In September 2017, the Treasurer’s Office and Department of Financial Regulation executed a Memorandum of Understanding to form a working group. FLWG was convened in October 2017 to review the effectiveness of State financial literacy outreach. The following agency and department staff were either surveyed, interviewed, or participated as members of FLWG:

- Agency of Education
- Agency of Human Services
- Department of Disabilities, Aging and Independent Living
- Department of Children and Families
- Department of Corrections
- Department of Health
- Department of Mental Health
- Department of Financial Regulation
- Department of Human Resources
- Department of Labor
- Department of Libraries
- Department of Taxes
- Department of Vermont Health Access
- Office of the Attorney General
- Office of the Chief Marketing Officer
- Office of the State Treasurer

Each agency and department shared information about relevant financial education initiatives. The results were compiled to create an inventory of state government financial literacy resources, outreach efforts, educational activities, printed literature, and electronics documents.

Findings

FLWG reviewed information to answer the following questions:

1. Do State agencies, departments, and offices currently provide personal finance education?

2. How do State agencies, departments, and offices utilize Vermont's network of reputable private and community-based groups that provide financial education services?
3. Are there unutilized or underutilized outreach efforts that could be refined or redeveloped to deliver easily accessible personal finance education resources?
4. Are there State special funds or trust funds that are related to personal finance and can these resources be managed differently to maximize investment returns?

FLWG reviewed the findings of the Vermont Financial Literacy Commission and looked at state and national examples of cross-governmental and cross-sector initiatives to improve delivery of personal finance education. Ten follow up meetings were held under the direction of the Treasurer's Office and Department of Financial Regulation. The findings and recommendations of the FLWG were developed in these collaborative settings.

Do State agencies, departments, and offices currently provide personal finance education?

FLWG finds that many State agencies, departments, and offices currently provide financial education through a broad array of outreach including programs and projects that seek to equip Vermonters with the skills to effectively manage their money. Attachment 1 contains briefs about State outreach initiatives.

How do State agencies, departments, and offices utilize Vermont's network of reputable private and community-based groups that provide financial education services?

In some instances, State-led financial literacy initiatives have been developed and are distributed in conjunction with Vermont's network of private and community-based groups that provide financial education. Attachment 2 provides an inventory of relevant resources available through organizations across the state.

Are there unutilized or underutilized outreach efforts that could be refined or redeveloped to deliver easily accessible personal finance education resources?

While State financial literacy education programming is notable and wide ranging, FLWG finds that there is a need for greater communication and coordination between agencies, departments, and offices to broaden the reach of individual initiatives. Inconsistent collaboration may limit the ability of state government to effectively reach citizens, and in some instances lead to duplication of work. Adequate and consistent communication among stakeholder groups, such as that achieved through the formation of the Financial Literacy Working Group, may improve utilization of existing programs.

Are there State special funds or trust funds that are related to personal finance and can these resources be managed differently to maximize investment returns?

FLWG acknowledges that governmental entities have varied missions and structures. State and federal requirements may restrict use of funding or personnel in a way that constrains resources that might otherwise appear ideally situated for financial education. Further, on the topic of optimizing resources contained in State special funds and trust funds, FLWG finds that authority for fund creation is based in statute and would require an act of law to manage resources differently. Attachment 3 describes relevant funds and responses from agencies, departments, and offices.

Recommendations

In light of the above findings, FLWG makes the following recommendations:

1. FLWG should continue to meet on a regular basis to continue a collaborative dialogue between State agencies, departments, and offices.
2. FLWG should develop an internally-facing electronic platform to connect relevant State personnel and keep them up to date on personal finance education initiatives at the statewide and local level.
3. FLWG should work to identify and create issue briefs and educational resources for the general public on important financial education topics such as asset building, credit, insurance, investing, scams, and other relevant, in-demand topics.
4. FLWG should create and maintain an up-to-date, externally facing financial education website with embedded resources that direct to State and reputable private and community-based groups that demonstrate expertise in financial literacy. The State Treasurer's Office should be responsible for the creation and maintenance of this electronic resource.
5. FLWG should implement a public awareness initiative that utilizes the expertise of State personnel to offer informational speakers, letters to the editor, and general financial education in forums accessible to citizens across Vermont.

6. FLWG may consider and recommend policy changes that serve to enhance the financial well-being of Vermonters.
7. All projects implemented by FLWG should be done with the intention of identifying and compiling performance measures to ensure accountability of its work.

Conclusion

By implementing these recommendations, FLWG is confident that State agencies, departments, and offices will more effectively deliver personal finance education and resources to Vermonters. FLWG offers these recommendations in the belief that improving the financial well-being of Vermont citizens is integral to achieving a more prosperous future for our State. We welcome the opportunity to collaborate and wish to extend our gratitude to the State personnel who have contributed to this process:

Attachment 1: Statewide Agency and Department Activities

FLWG surveyed State agencies, departments, and offices to learn about their financial education initiatives. Attachment 1 inventories relevant activities by entity. Agencies and departments not listed either did not respond or identified that financial literacy education is not applicable to their office's scope of work.

Agency of Administration

Department of Human Resources

The Department of Human Resources (DHR) facilitates retirement readiness courses for employees planning to retire within 5 to 10 years. The course is taught by Treasurer's Office staff. Topics include financial planning, tax considerations, legal affairs, estate planning, Social Security, and State employee retirement benefits.

LiveWell Vermont offers online workshops on Financial Wellness and Education as part of their annual incentive program. LiveWell also offers individual telephonic coaching and has helped clients in the area of financial goals.

DHR's webpage offers resources for financial wellness and Invest EAP offers financial and legal resources and assistance.

Department of Libraries

The Department of Libraries shares and promotes financial literacy resources, consumer information, business information, and houses a public meetings calendar. The Department promotes Financial Literacy Month and provides workshops to libraries on promoting financial literacy. The Department has also previously partnered with the Treasurer's Office on the K-6 Reading is an Investment Program. Other partners have included the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB), Financial Industry Regulation Authority (FINRA), AARP, Vermont Saves, and the Community Legal Information Center (CLIC). The CLIC is wholly funded by VTLIB, providing legal reference information and resources to Vermont citizens at the Vermont Law School.

Department of Taxes

Understanding taxes serve as an important component in financial literacy because federal and state taxes affect personal and household budgets. Whether one is owed a refund or must pay more taxes by April 15 of each year, a taxpayer should factor in employer withholding for each paycheck when planning a budget. Knowledge about taxes, good planning, and smart decision-making can help boost monthly income and avoid unpleasant surprises during tax time.

Attachment 1: Statewide Agency and Department Activities

The Vermont Department of Taxes (TAX) conducts outreach and education to help those who are required to pay Vermont taxes obtain a better understanding of what taxes to file and how to pay them. TAX also educates taxpayers about the taxes they are exempt from paying and tax credits for which they may be eligible. There are several free tax preparation services available to income- and age-eligible Vermonters, and the department distributes information on these services to the public.

TAX creates and distributes educational materials to explain Vermont tax statute and regulations. These materials include fact sheets, guides, handbooks, videos, infographics, posters, flyers, slide presentations, and handouts. In these materials, the department follows “plain language” principles, using everyday words written in an easy-to-read format that the average taxpayer can understand.

TAX outreach includes sending subject matter experts to participate in workshops, symposiums, conferences, and webinars hosted by the department’s stakeholder groups and partners. TAX also hosts workshops and webinars on important tax topics, and attends conferences and trade shows each year in an effort to personalize outreach efforts.

TAX also uses electronic means of communicating tax information, such as its website at www.tax.vermont.gov, e-newsletters through Constant Contact, and social media. The website is the best place for taxpayers to go to learn about taxes. It’s here where they will find fact sheets and guides, videos and infographics. E-newsletters are tailored to the needs of individual taxpayers, businesses and nonprofits, and tax preparers and attorneys. TAX’s Facebook and Twitter accounts have recently seen an uptick in followers, “likes,” and positive comments showing that it is an effective way to distribute information.

TAX has found that being proactive in its outreach and education reduces taxpayer confusion and mistakes. This proactive approach also reduces taxpayer call and email volume, allowing for more efficient and expedited departmental processes, including faster refunds. TAX is always looking for better ways to reach taxpayers and stakeholder groups, responding to their needs and helping them pay the right amount of tax.

Agency of Education

The Agency of Education (AOE) has engaged in a number of strategies to aid school systems in integrating financial literacy into their curricula. AOE inventoried financial literacy programs and selected Jump$tart Standards for State Board of Education consideration in January 2018, which was adopted by the Board. Since Vermont adopted the Jump$tart financial literacy standards, AOE has collaborated with the Vermont chapter of the Jump$tart Coalition to provide financial literacy educator training at the organization’s 2018 Educator Conference.

Attachment 1: Statewide Agency and Department Activities

AOE is in the process of launching a webpage with financial literacy resources. An annotated list of financial education resources has been provided to Vermont educators. To continue this work, AOE is partnering with Champlain College Center for Financial Literacy to provide educator training as well as the development of proficiency based graduation requirements and sample recommendations for ways in which to incorporate financial literacy into Personalized Learning Plans.

AOE uses its weekly field memo to share upcoming opportunities, such as FAFSA workshops with the Vermont Student Assistance Corporation (VSAC), and other training seminars and events. Additionally, the field memo is used to communicate financial education opportunities to practitioners, and to explain the importance and interdisciplinary nature of financial literacy education.

Agency of Human Services

Department of Disabilities, Aging and Independent Living

The Department of Disabilities, Aging and Independent Living (DAIL), in partnership with the Attorney General's Office and community partners, launched Stay Savvy Vermont, a public access series designed to educate older Vermonters and their families about financial fraud. The series has published three short videos.

Area Agencies on Aging are permitted to use Older Americans Act Title III-B funding for optional "financial counseling" and "tax counseling and assistance." In accordance with this statute, Southwestern Vermont Council on Aging offers volunteer financial counselors to provide support in budgeting and financial management.

Department for Children and Families

The Department for Children and Families' (DCF) Reach Up program case managers work with participants one-on-one using the BCFP's financial toolkit "Your Money Your Goals" as well as the workbook "Behind on Bills." As part of a demonstration project, Reach Up partners with two Community Action Agencies – Capstone Community Action (CCA) and Champlain Valley Office of Economic Opportunity (CVOEO) – to provide financial capability services for participants. Interested participants are referred to these agencies for financial coaching and goal-setting, and receive incentives for completing goals such as opening savings accounts, checking credit, setting up direct deposit, attending financial education classes, and saving money.

OEO administers core funding for Community Action Agencies, which each provide a range of financial capability programs including financial education classes and materials, financial coaching and counseling, credit building, free tax preparation, matched savings initiatives, asset ownership programs, and more. OEO oversees the Vermont Matched Savings program. Funds are granted to CCA, which leverages additional funding and provides statewide administration of the program through Vermont's Community Action Agencies.

OEO provides regular training and assistance to grant partners to support their financial capability services and integrate financial capability into human services. This includes both webinars and workshops for service providers. OEO supports the integration of financial capability services into programs including Family Supportive Housing and Weatherization.

Department of Corrections

The Department of Corrections' (DOC) Community High School of Vermont offers Consumer Economics/Personal Finance courses. These courses provide students with an understanding of the concepts and principals involved in managing one's personal finances. These courses emphasize lifespan goal-setting, individual and family decision-making, and consumer rights as well as topics that are commonly associated with personal finance so that students can become financially responsible consumers. Topics may include savings and investing, credit, insurance, taxes and social security, spending patterns, and budget planning, contracts, and consumer protection.

Department of Health

The Vermont Department of Health (DOH) does not currently offer financial literacy outreach, education, or programming.

Department of Mental Health

The Department of Mental Health (DMH) has no financial literacy programming that occurs through DMH. It is likely that individuals may get support with financial literacy according to their unique treatment plan goals, but it is not an explicit programming expectation.

Department of Vermont Health Access

The Department of Vermont Health Access's (DVHA) Health Access Eligibility and Enrollment Unit (HAEEU) distributes materials such as "Health Insurance 101" and "Health Insurance: Why It's Important & What You Need to Know" online and in print to help Vermonters make educated decisions about choosing a health insurance plan that will best meet their needs and budget.

Attachment 1: Statewide Agency and Department Activities

DVHA offers a Plan Comparison Tool that allows Vermonters to compare health insurance options by premium, expected total cost after subsidies and out-of-pocket costs in an average year, or expected total costs in a low or high health care usage year. DVHA also participates in community events and webinars to help Vermonters understand how to use the tool as a starting point of their research into making the significant financial decision of which health insurance plan to buy. The tool helps them see that their choice could result in a swing of thousands of dollars in expected costs.

DVHA would welcome the opportunity to collaborate with financial literacy educators to incorporate the Plan Comparison Tool into their lessons and provide a real-life example of comparison shopping, assessing risk, and planning for the unexpected.

Miscellaneous

Department of Financial Regulation

The Department of Financial Regulation (DFR) offers information on investing, banking, and insurance, through a variety of platforms. Resources for Vermont consumers are available on the department's website, including information on:

- Checking the license or registration of an insurance agent, investment broker, or other financial service engaging in business in Vermont,
- Understanding different insurance products,
- Choosing an investment professional, and
- Filing a complaint.

The department uses a combination of social media and the DFR website to proactively engage the public about monthly awareness campaigns, consumer alerts, and seasonal tips related to consumer financial protection, including:

- Awareness Campaigns
 - Financial Literacy Awareness Month (April)
 - Severe Weather Preparedness (March)
 - Lightening Awareness Week (July)
 - Life Insurance Awareness Month (September)
 - World Investor Week (October)
- Seasonal Tips
 - Winter Weather Driving
 - Black Friday and Cyber Monday Shopping
 - Fire Safety during the Holidays
- Consumer Alerts for Scams and Fraud

Attachment 1: Statewide Agency and Department Activities

DFR also conducts regular outreach to senior centers and residences, libraries, municipal centers, banks, expos, schools, and others to provide information and resources to Vermont residents on investments, insurance, banking, and fraud and scam prevention. DFR also partners with UVM's Osher Lifelong Learning Institute, AARP, the Attorney General's Office, the Association of Vermont Credit Unions, and the Community of Vermont Elders. DFR uses resources from the FDIC, BCFP, FInRA, 2-1-1, FTC, NEFE, and others.

The Department of Financial Regulation, as outlined in 9 V.S.A. § 5601(d) and (e), established the Financial Services Education and Training Special Fund. Donations to this fund come from financial services entities as stipulated in a settlement agreement as a result of an investigation and enforcement action into securities practices. The fund is used to "develop and implement financial services education initiatives to inform the public about financial services, with particular emphasis on the prevention and detection of securities, banking, and insurance fraud."

DFR convened the Financial Literacy Working Group with the Office of the State Treasurer.

Department of Labor

The Department of Labor's (DOL) Workforce Development Division staff receives training to administer the BCFP's "Your Money, Your Goals" with clients in group and individual settings. Counselors refer clients to partners including the Vermont Student Assistance Corporation, Small Business Association, Consumer Credit Counseling of Vermont and New Hampshire, and local housing organizations as needed. DOL's regional offices offer regular financial literacy workshops as part of their Monthly Calendar of Events.

DOL's Labor Market Information team (VTLMI) partners with the McClure Foundation to produce career awareness brochures to promote good paying careers that are in demand in the state. VTLMI regularly presents at middle schools, high schools and colleges, as well as Career and Technical Education centers, school counselors, workforce development boards, and organizations serving mature Vermonters. These presentations are typically on the state economy, employment trends, and wage data. The VTLMI assists the Treasurer's Office with the Vermont Treasury Cup Challenge by proofing questions for accuracy and supplying volunteers for the event.

Office of the State Treasurer

The Treasurer's Office (TRE) actively works to promote financial literacy. The goals of the program are (1) advocacy – working to promote the adoption of fiscally sound money management practices by Vermonters of all ages; (2) collaboration – working with local, state and national groups to build support for and participation in activities that promote and teach personal finance; and (3) development—creating new financial education programs and resources for Vermont citizens where gaps exist.

TRE's financial literacy initiatives are overseen by a Director of Financial Literacy and Outreach. The Director works with State partners, educators, financial institutions, and community organizations to develop and manage original financial education programming. The Director sits on the Board of the Vermont chapter of the Jump$tart Coalition, an all-volunteer organization that advances youth financial literacy.

TRE offers an annual financial and reading literacy program called Reading is an Investment to Vermont K-6 students. TRE selects three money-themed books and develops an accompanying curriculum guide to assist educators share financial concepts with their students. Over 140 Vermont schools received the 2018-2019 edition of the program. 5,038 student participants completed the 2017-2018 program requirements. Additionally, TRE has formed a partnership with Vermont Afterschool, Inc. to adapt Reading is an Investment for afterschool programs, which will launch in January 2019.

TRE hosts an annual financial literacy competition called the Vermont Treasury Cup Challenge. High school students compete in the a one-day competition to challenge their knowledge of personal finance, economics, consumer affairs, and more. TRE collaborates with the National Economics Challenge to offer the Treasury Cup as a feeder competition to NEC's national counterpart. The competition is provided free-of-charge through sponsorships, including support from the VSAC.

TRE has convened several financial literacy workshops including those addressing key needs of groups, such as the National Guard and women, as well as issue focuses such as a challenging economy and retirement. The Treasurer's Office maintains a clearinghouse of financial literacy resources on its website.

VermontABLE is a savings program offered to Vermonters who experience disabilities allowing them to save and invest without losing benefits such as SSDI and Medicare. The Green Mountain Secure Retirement Plan, which is under development, will offer a Multiple Employer Plan for Vermont small businesses employing 50 or fewer individuals and the self-employed an affordable retirement investment option.

TRE participated in the Vermont Financial Literacy Commission, and convened the Financial Literacy Working Group with DFR.

Attachment 3: Statewide Fund Inventory

FLWG surveyed State agencies and departments to inventory State special funds or trust funds that are related to personal finance education. The results are inventoried in narrative format in Attachment 3. Agencies and departments that reported having no special funds or trust funds are excluded from this summary.

Department of Financial Regulation

DFR, as outlined in 9 V.S.A. § 5601(d) and (e), established the Financial Services Education and Training Special Fund. Donations to this fund come from financial services entities as stipulated in a settlement agreement as a result of an investigation and enforcement action into securities practices. Money has been deposited into this fund for over 12 years.

The Financial Services Education and Training Special Fund are used to "develop and implement financial services education initiatives to inform the public about financial services, with particular emphasis on the prevention and detection of securities, banking, and insurance fraud."

Office of the State Treasurer

TRE manages the Financial Literacy Trust Fund established by 32 V.S.A. § 111. The purpose of the Fund is to "promote the adoption of fiscally sound money management practices" through outreach initiatives and original educational programming. TRE is authorized to receive "State appropriations, gifts, grants, federal funds, and any other funds, both public and private" into the fund, to be used at the discretion of the State Treasurer. The primary source of funds to date has been from financial institutions, and philanthropic and foundation support. Money has been deposited into this fund for over 12 years.

Expenditures from the Financial Literacy Trust Fund have been made to support the programming and activities described in Attachment 1 of this report (see pages 13 and 14). Fund contributions, expenditures, and earnings are disclosed in TRE's annual report to the Governor and General Assembly.
