What is captive insurance?

Captive Insurance is a highly specialized form of self insurance. To insure a variety of risks, companies or groups of companies establish their own licensed, regulated insurance companies. There are currently over 6,600 active captives worldwide. As of this printing, Vermont has licensed 1,242 captives. Vermont's captive owners represent a wide range of industries including multi-national corporations, associations, banks, municipalities, transportation and airline companies, power producers, public housing authorities, higher education institutions, healthcare, telecommunications suppliers, shipping companies, insurance companies and manufacturers.

Captive vs. traditional insurance regulation

Commercial insurance companies sell insurance to the general public and are licensed in all states in which they do business. But captive insurance companies insure only their owners who have the ability to manage and retain their own risk. The degree of regulatory oversight required for captives is different than that required for commercial insurers. The captive is licensed in only one state, and operates under the captive insurance law of that state.

Economic impact on Vermont

The captive industry is great for Vermont. In 2020 the Vermont captive industry is estimated to have generated $26.8 million of premium tax benefits and related fees for Vermont. At last count, more than 400 direct, high-paying jobs were created by the captive industry in Vermont.

Vermont Captive Insurance Association

VCIA is the largest trade association for captive insurance in the world. Established in 1985, the Association provides lobbying support on both the state and federal levels for its over 350 member companies. In addition, it hosts professional education opportunities for the industry at large. VCIA has a national reputation of being a highly effective and well-respected trade association. Our office is located in Burlington, Vermont. We have a staff of 7 people and are governed by a Board of Directors composed of industry professionals.

Our Mission

VCIA will provide members with legislative support, education, opportunities for information-sharing and a network of mutual support with others who share objectives in order to ensure an environment favorable to the continued growth and health of the captive industry and the Vermont captive community.

Our Vision

VCIA strives to be the premier captive insurance association in the world.
