Analysis of the General Assembly’s Authority to Control the Qualifications to Vote and Hold Office in Local Elections

I. Introduction

Question presented: Whether Vt. Const. Ch. II, § 42 (voter’s qualification and oath) and Vt. Const. Ch. I, Art. 8 (right of voters in elections) provide the qualifications to vote and hold office in all elections in the State, or whether the General Assembly’s authority set forth in Vt. Const. Ch. II, §§ 6 and 69 to constitute towns and control municipal charters, respectively, allows the General Assembly to provide different qualifications to vote and hold office in local elections.^{1,2}

Short answer: While the Office of Legislative Council cannot provide this opinion with absolute certainty, it does appear constitutionally permissible for the General Assembly to provide qualifications to vote and hold office in local elections that are different from those constitutionally required for our general elections. The Office cannot provide this opinion with absolute certainty because there does not appear to be caselaw adjudicating this question under existing constitutional voting qualification standards, since voting rights have changed and currently, voting qualifications in Vermont are the same in general and local elections.

However, this was not always the case. It was statutory changes by the General Assembly that brought local election voting qualifications in line with the constitutional voting qualifications for our general elections, and there is no known caselaw to suggest that the requirement that these voting qualifications be the same has now become constitutionally solidified.

Instead, the Supreme Court of Vermont (SCOV) has stated on at least several occasions—when voting qualifications differed in general and local elections—that the qualifications to vote and hold office in local elections are an issue within legislative, not constitutional, control. For example, the SCOV has upheld the ability of non-U.S. citizens and women to vote and hold office in local elections when those persons were constitutionally prohibited from doing so in general elections. These cases still appear to be good law.

To assist the Legislative Branch in examining this question, this analysis summarizes changes in voting qualifications on the State and local level; provides an overview of the constitutional scope of legislative power and of canons of constitutional construction; and sets forth a timeline of applicable constitutional and statutory provisions and caselaw.

¹ As used in this analysis, “local election” is as defined in 17 V.S.A. § 2103\(18\): An election that deals with the selection of persons to fill public office or the settling of public questions solely within a single municipality, or the election to settle a public question in several municipalities in which the municipalities must unanimously concur if the question is to be approved.

² This question relates to the proposal to allow non-citizens to vote in City elections in the City of Montpelier as set forth in H.207, the proposal to allow 16- and 17-year-olds to vote in all local elections as set forth in H.418, and any similar legislation.

II. Overview

A. Federal Law Does Not Control

Federal law does not control this question, since the Supreme Court of the United States has held that non-discriminatory voting qualifications in state and local elections are within the discretion of the states.³

In regard to non-citizen voting, federal law in 18 U.S.C. § 611\(a\) (voting by aliens) prohibits non-citizens from voting in federal elections, but specifically allows non-citizens to vote in non-federal elections if they “are authorized [to do so] under a State constitution or statute or a local ordinance[.]”⁴

Therefore, the only question that remains is whether it is permissible under the Vermont Constitution for the General Assembly to establish voter qualifications in local elections that differ from our general elections, because the only thing that controls the General Assembly is a constitutional provision.⁵

B. Voting Qualifications under the Vermont Constitution

Vt. Const. Ch. II, § 42 currently provides that every person who has taken the voter’s oath and who is at least 18 years of age, a U.S. citizen, and a Vermont resident “shall be entitled to all the privileges of a voter of this state[.]” The voter’s oath requires such a person to swear or affirm that when giving “vote or suffrage, touching any matter that concerns the State of Vermont,” that the person will do so by judging what will result in the “best good” of the State, and without fear or favor of any person. This section also allows 17-year-olds who otherwise meet the voter qualifications to vote in the primary if they will be 18 years of age by the general election.

Relatedly, Vt. Const. Ch. I, Art. 8 provides that “all elections ought to be free and without corruption, and that all voters, having a sufficient, evident, and common interest with, and attachment to the community, have a right to elect officers, and be elected into office, agreeably to the regulations made in this constitution.”

⁴ This subsection goes on to provide that if a non-citizen is legally permitted to vote in a State or local election and that election is held at the same time as a federal election, the voting must be conducted in a manner so that the non-citizen does not have an opportunity to vote in the federal election.

Read together, Vt. Const. Ch. I, Art. 8 and Ch. II, § 42 provide that a person who meets the qualifications of a “voter” has a right to vote and to be elected into office. The question is whether these voting qualifications do apply to “all elections,” or whether the General Assembly has the authority to provide different qualifications in local elections as part of its authority to control municipal government as set forth in Vt. Const. Ch. II, §§ 6 and 69.

C. “Voter” in the Vermont Constitution Means “Freeman”

While Vt. Const. Ch. I, Art. 8 and Ch. II, § 42 now use the general terms “voter” and “voters,” those terms were substitutes for the prior terms “freeman” and “freemen” pursuant to the SCOV’s 1994 gender inclusive revision authority, which, via Vt. Const. Ch. II, § 76, was required to “not alter the sense, meaning or effect of the sections of the Constitution.” The SCOV made this substitution throughout the Vt. Const., except for the subject title preceding Vt. Const. Ch. II, § 42. There, the SCOV retained “QUALIFICATIONS OF FREEMEN” and added thereafter “AND FREEWOMEN”.⁶

“Freemen” was one term used in the original 1777 Vt. Const., but “inhabitants” and “denizen” were also referenced. “Freemen” had voting and office-holding rights the inhabitants did not. “Freemen” were defined in 1777 Vt. Const. Ch. II, § VI as men who were at least 21 years of age, who lived in the State for at least a year, and who took the voter’s oath; there was no requirement for a “freeman” to be a U.S. citizen.⁷ “Freemen” could vote for the State, legislative, and county offices described in the Vermont Constitution. “Freemen” voted in “freemen’s meetings,” which our SCOV later discussed means what we now know as general elections.⁸ The original Vt. Const. did not provide for the election of any local offices.⁹

D. The Vt. Const. Does Not Control Local Elections; the General Assembly Does

1. Overview

In 1789—just 12 years after the adoption of the original 1777 Vt. Const.—the SCOV stated in State v. Marsh¹⁰ that when the 1786 Vt. Const. referred to “all elections,” it was referring to elections by the freemen; and its reference to “the people” meant the freemen.¹¹ Accordingly, the Court held that the 1786 Vt. Const.’s requirement to hold elections by ballot extended only to elections by the freemen, and “does not extend to the choice of town officers.”¹²

⁶ See the SCOV’s 1994 Vt. Const. Gender Inclusive Revision.

⁷ Vermont did not join the Union until 1791.

⁸ Martin v. Fullam, 90 Vt. 163, 97 A. 442, 445 (1916) (“The term ‘general election’ is defined by section 5 of the Public Statutes to mean ‘any election of state and county officers, representatives to Congress or electors.’ By No. 1, § 1, Laws of 1915, it is made to include United States Senators. And throughout the Public Statutes (Revision of 1906) the term ‘general election’ is uniformly used to designate what before had commonly been known as ‘freemen’s meeting.’”).

⁹ Our current justices of the peace are a local office under Vt. Const. Ch. II, § 52, but 1777 Vt. Const., Ch. II, § XXVII originally created them as a county office.

¹⁰ State v. Marsh, 1789 WL 103 (Vt.), N.Chip 28 (1789).

¹¹ Id. at 30.

¹² Id. at 31.

“The framers of the constitution were forming a plan for the general government of the State. They do not appear to have had an eye to the internal regulation of lesser corporations.”¹³

While statute used to provide different qualifications to vote and hold office in local elections than what the Vt. Const. required for freemen’s/general elections, statute was later amended so that voters in local elections had to meet the same qualifications as “freemen” as set forth in Vt. Const. Ch. II, § 42, and those qualifications are now repeated in 17 V.S.A. § 2121.¹⁴

However, during the time that statutory qualifications to vote and hold office in local elections differed from the constitutional qualifications in freemen’s/general elections, the SCOV stated on at least several occasions that the Legislative Branch controls qualifications to vote and hold office in local elections, since the General Assembly has control over municipalities.

2. SCOV has Upheld Non-U.S. Citizens Voting and Holding Office in Local Elections

Specifically, while the Vt. Const. was amended in 1828 so that a “freeman” was required to be a natural born citizen of the United States or naturalized by Congress, the SCOV in the 1863 case Woodcock v. Bolster¹⁵ distinguished constitutional “freemen” from statutory voters in local elections when it upheld the statutory qualification for a person to vote and hold office in local elections if he was a taxpaying male of at least 21 years of age, regardless of whether he was a citizen.¹⁶

3. Constitutional Oath of Office Does Not Apply to Local Offices

Similarly, in 1886, the SCOV held that the Vt. Const. requirement for officers to take oaths does not apply to local offices. The Court stated that Vt. Const., Ch. II’s plan or frame of government “has no reference to the plan or frame of town governments, nor to the election and qualification of the officers thereof. Towns are not creations of the constitution; they exist either by virtue of charters granted by the sovereign before the adoption of the constitution, or by acts of the legislature since its adoption, and derive their powers, not from constitutional provisions, but from legislative enactments [emphasis added].”¹⁷

¹³ Id. at 29.

¹⁴ 1973, No. 172 (Adj. Sess.) was the act that set forth voting qualifications for all elections in one statute. Before that, 1971, No. 90 still distinguished between voting qualifications in federal, State, and local elections based on the length of a person’s residence in the State or his or her town. Moreover, at least through the enactment of 1957, No. 224, Sec. 2, voters in local elections had to pay poll taxes to be qualified to vote, whereas the Vt. Const. has never conditioned the qualification to vote in freemen’s/general elections on the payment of a tax.

¹⁵ Woodcock v. Bolster, 35 Vt. 632 (1863).

¹⁶ Id. at 639 (“[W]e fail to see how it would follow that a change of the constitution in relation to the qualifications of freemen should work a corresponding change in the statutes regulating voting in town and school meetings . . . It has not been questioned but that it is actually within the power of the legislature to regulate the right of voting in such meetings, and the right of holding office, according to their pleasure, and that there is nothing in the constitution restraining its exercise.”).

¹⁷ Rowell v. Horton, 58 Vt. 1, 3 A. 906, 907 (1886).

3. SCOV Upheld Women Voting and Holding Office in Local Elections Before Women Became Constitutional “Freemen”

Finally, prior to 1924 when women gained the right to be “freemen” under the Vermont Constitution, the 1915 SCOV case State v. Foley¹⁸ cited legislative acts as early as 1870 that permitted women to hold school district offices,¹⁹ and in that case the SCOV upheld the election of a woman to a school district office.²⁰

III. Conclusion

The Legislative Branch controls by statute what a constitutional provision does not. At this time, there is no known caselaw that would constitutionally require Vermont to have the same voting qualifications in both State and local elections. If none exists, then SCOV caselaw indicates that the General Assembly has the constitutional discretion to enact H.207, H.418, or similar legislation, and that this is a policy question, not a constitutional one.

¹⁸ State v. Foley, 89 Vt. 193, 94 A. 841 (1915).

¹⁹ For reference, one can see in the 1880 Revised Laws \(R.L.\), in Title 10, ch. 31, § 524, that “[w]omen shall have the same right to vote as men have in all school district meetings, and in the election of school commissioners in towns and cities, and the same right to hold offices relating to school affairs.”

APPENDIX A: Constitutional Legislative Authority

A. The Vermont Constitutional Controls

“The Vermont Constitution is the fundamental charter of our state and is preeminent in our governmental scheme . . . As such, the constitution stands above legislative and judge-made law, and the rights contained therein speak ‘for the entire people as their supreme law.’”²¹

B. Legislative Power

1. Supreme Legislative Power, Restricted Only by the Constitution

As the General Assembly, the Senate and House hold the “Supreme Legislative power,”²² which includes the power to “prepare bills and enact them into laws.”²³ The Vermont Supreme Court describes the General Assembly as “the lawmaking branch of government.”²⁴ However, the General Assembly “shall have no power to add to, alter, abolish, or infringe any part of this Constitution.”²⁵ In other words, the only thing that limits the General Assembly’s lawmaking authority is the Constitution. “The Constitution is not a grant of power to the Legislature, but it is a limitation of its general powers. The Legislature’s power is practically absolute, except for constitutional limitations.”²⁶

2. Supreme Legislative Power Establishes Policy through Police Power

The scope of the General Assembly’s legislative power is demonstrated in the Vermont Constitution’s provision of police power: “That the people of this state by their legal representatives, have the sole, inherent, and exclusive right of governing and regulating the internal police of the same.”²⁷

Again, in its exercise of police power, the only thing that limits the General Assembly’s lawmaking discretion is a constitutional provision. “Subject to constitutional limitations, a state Legislature is authorized to pass measures for the general welfare of the people of the state in the exercise of the police power, and is itself the judge of the necessity or expediency of the means adopted.”²⁸ In regard to the police power, “the constitution clearly empowered the legislature to pass such laws as, in its discretion, it might judge would be for the common benefit of the people of the state.”²⁹ This includes legislating to provide for the public’s health, safety, convenience, and morals.³⁰

3. Police Power Defines Vermont as a Sovereign Entity

The police power manifested in our enacted laws is also how we as Vermonters define ourselves as a sovereign entity. The Tenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution provides that all powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution nor prohibited by it to the states are reserved to the states or to the people. “The dynamics of state government in the federal system are to allow the formation of consensus respecting the way members of a discrete community treat each other in their daily contact and constant interaction with each other.”³¹

4. The Legislative Branch Controls Municipalities

Vt. Const. Ch. II, § 6 provides the General Assembly with the power to “constitute towns, boroughs, cities and counties” and Ch. II, § 69 provides that municipal charters “are to be and remain under the patronage and control of the State[.]” The SCOV stated that “the power exercised by the Legislature is the people’s power, delegated to it by the people in the Constitution of the state, which expressly commits to the Legislature the power to ‘constitute towns, boroughs, cities, and counties.’ This power is essentially a trust, and requires the exercise of judgment and discretion in its execution, and no authority is given to delegate it. The Legislature must, therefore, exercise its own judgment and discretion in its execution as far as necessary to discharge the personal trust committed to it.”³²

APPENDIX B: Constitutional Construction

- i. Generally. “We have a number of tools construing our constitution, including our own decisions, the wording of the text, historical analysis, construction of similar provisions in other state constitutions[,] and sociological materials.”³³
- ii. Plain language controls. Public officers’ understanding and administration of constitutional provisions “may be resorted to in aid of interpretation in case of doubtful meaning. But, when the language is unambiguous, its meaning cannot be modified or controlled by practice, however long continued. In ascertaining the import and true interpretation of a written instrument, resort is first had to the obvious meaning of the language adopted, and, if this is explicit and unequivocal, all inference by way of construction is excluded. Should any part of the Constitution furnish answers in terms to the questions for decision, it would be not only unnecessary, but improper, to resort to extraneous aids to interpretation.”³⁴
- iii. Expressio unius est exclusion alterius.
 - “If the constitution declares that a thing shall be done in a particular manner or way, it is implied necessarily that it shall not be done in any other [way].”³⁵
 - ““For purposes of constitutional interpretation, the express mention of one thing implies the exclusion of another which might logically have been considered at the same time’ . . . ‘It is a universally recognized rule of the construction that, where a constitution or statute specifies certain things, the designation of such things excludes all others, a maximum commonly known as expressio unius est exclusio alterius.”³⁶
- iv. Context. “In construing the constitution, the court reads words and phrases in context according to the rules of grammar and common usage.”³⁷
- v. Specific over general. ““It is an established axiom of the constitutional law that where there are both general and specific constitutional provisions relating to the same subject, the specific provision will control.”³⁸
- vi. Legislature fills in details. “The standards for interpreting constitutional language and meaning, though related, are not the same as for ordinary statutes. Canons of construction, if applied, must be used more cautiously and sometimes differently. This is so because a constitutional provision, unlike a statute, usually operates to limit or direct legislative action . . . It is of great importance to remember that, since the purpose of any constitutional enactment is to delineate the framework of government, the working details are frequently left, as here, for legislative definition. Interpretation must, therefore, not be so narrow as to present an obstacle to that function. More than one pattern of working details may well be possible and constitutional [emphasis added].”³⁹

- vii. Spirit, essence, and core values. “The Vermont Constitution was adopted with little recorded debate and has undergone remarkably little revision in its 200-year history. Recapturing the meaning of a particular word or phrase as understood by a generation more than two centuries removed from our own requires, in some respects, an immersion in the culture and materials of the past more suited to the work of professional historians than courts and lawyers . . .

“The responsibility of the Court, however, is distinct from that of the historian, whose interpretation of past thought and actions necessarily informs our analysis of current issues but cannot alone resolve them . . .

“As we observed in State v. Kirchoff [citation omitted], ‘our duty is to discover . . . the core value that gave life to [constitutional provisions] . . .

“Out of the shifting and complicated kaleidoscope of events, social forces, and ideas that culminated in the Vermont Constitution of 1777, our task is to distill the essence, the motivating ideal of the framers.

“The challenge is to remain faithful to that historical ideal, while addressing contemporary issues that the framers undoubtedly could never have imagined.

“We first focus on the words of the Constitution themselves, for, as Chief Justice Marshall observed, ‘although the spirit of an instrument, especially a constitution, is to be respected not less than its letter, yet the spirit is to be collected chiefly from its words.’”⁴⁰

- viii. SCOV power. Under the separation of powers, “it is the province of the court to decide whether Vermont’s laws comply with the State Constitution”⁴¹; “[i]t is the function of the courts to maintain constitutional government”⁴²; and the Supreme Court of Vermont is the “final interpreter of the Vermont Constitution.”⁴³

APPENDIX C:
Timeline of Applicable Constitutional and Statutory Provisions and Caselaw

1777 Vt. Const.; Summary:

- “Freemen” have a right to elect and be elected into office. Men, at least 21 years of age, who reside in the State for at least one year, and take the oath, are entitled to the privileges of a “freeman” of this State.
- “Freemen” choose “The House of Representatives of the Freemen of this State” (and other constitutional offices) and a “foreigner” can’t be elected Representative until residing at least one year in the town immediately before the election.
- Representatives have the power to constitute towns.
- A “foreigner” “who comes to settle in this State,” and takes an oath to the State, can acquire real estate and after one years’ residence, “shall be deemed a free denizen thereof” and be entitled to all the rights of a “natural born subject of this State,” except that he cannot be elected a Representative until after two years’ residence.
- Ch. II, § XXXI mentioned the local office of town clerk, but did not reference any election for that office.
- Ch. II, § XXVII provided that freemen elect justices of the peace as a county office.

1777 Vt. Const., Ch. I, Art. VIII:

“That all elections ought to free; and that all freemen, having a sufficient evident common interest with, and attachment to, the community, have a right to elect officers, or be elected into office.”

1777 Vt. Const., Ch. II, § VI:

“Every man of the full age of twenty-one years, having resided in this State for the space of one whole year, next before the election of representatives, and who is of a quiet and peaceable behavior, and will take the following oath (or affirmation), shall be entitled to all the privileges of a freeman of this State.

"I _____ solemnly swear, by the ever living God (or affirm in the presence of Almighty God that whenever I am called to give my vote or suffrage, touching any matter that concerns the State of Vermont, I will do it so, as in my conscience, I shall judge will most conduce to the best good of the same, as established by the constitution, without fear or favor of any man.""

1777 Vt. Const. Ch. II, § VII:

“The House of Representatives of the Freeman of this State, shall consist of persons most noted for wisdom and virtue, to be chosen by the freemen of every town in this State, respectively. And no foreigner shall be chosen, unless he has resided in the town for which he shall be elected, one year immediately before said election.”

1777 Vt. Const. Ch. II, § VIII:

“The members of the House of Representatives shall be chosen annually, by ballot, by the freemen of this State, on the first Tuesday of September, forever (except this present year) and shall meet on the second Thursday of the succeeding October, and shall be stiled, The General Assembly of the State of Vermont; and shall have power to choose their Speaker, Secretary of the State, their Clerk, and other necessary officers of the House—sit on their own adjournments—prepare bills and enact them into laws—judge of the elections and qualifications of their own members—they may expel a member, but not a second time for the same cause—They may administer oaths (or affirmations) on examination of witnesses—redress grievances—impeach State criminals—grant charters of incorporation—constitute towns, boroughs, cities, and counties, and shall have all other powers necessary for the Legislature of a free State, but they shall have no power to add to, alter, abolish, or infringe any part of this constitution. And for this present year the members of the General Assembly shall be chosen on the first Tuesday of March next, and shall meet at the meeting-house, in Windsor, on the second Thursday of March next.”

1777 Vt. Const. Ch. II, § XXIX:

“All elections, whether by the people or in General Assembly, shall be by ballot, free and voluntary: and any elector who shall receive any gift or reward for his vote, in meat, drink, monies or otherwise, shall forfeit his right to elect at that time, and suffer such other penalty as future laws shall direct. And any person who shall, directly or indirectly, give, promise or bestow any such rewards to be elected, shall, thereby, be rendered incapable to serve for the ensuing year.”

1777 Vt. Const. Ch. II, § XXXVIII:

“Every foreigner of good character, who comes to settle in this State, having first taken an oath or affirmation of allegiance to the same, may purchase, or by other just means acquire, hold, and transfer, land, or other real estate; and after one years residence, shall be deemed a free denizen thereof and be entitled to all the rights of a natural born subject of this State; except that he shall not be capable of being elected a representative, until after two years residence.”

1786 Vt. Const.: No voting qualification-related changes from 1777 Vt. Const. Removed the only two references to “foreigners” in Ch. II, §§ VIII and XXXVI, and like other officers, justices of the peace were elected by the House of Representatives.

1789: State v. Marsh, 1789 WL 103 (Vt.), N.Chip. 28 (1789):

SCOV stated that in 1786 Vt. Const., Ch. II, § XXXI's provision that "All elections, whether by the people or in the General Assembly, shall be by ballot, free and voluntary[,] "all elections" was referring to freemen's meetings, and "the people" meant the freemen. Id. at 30. "The framers of the constitution were forming a plan for the general government of State. They do not appear to have had an eye to the internal regulation of lesser corporations." Id. at 29. The SCOV stated that this section "does not extend to the choice of town officers," in holding that town meeting elections did not need to be held by ballot. Id. at 31.

1791: Vermont is first state to join the Union; is 14th state.

1793 Vt. Const.: No voting qualification-related changes from 1786 Vt. Const.

1828: Vt. Const. 1st Article of Amendment, adopted by convention:

"No person, who is not already a freeman of this state, shall be entitled to exercise the privileges of a freeman, unless he be a natural born citizen of this, or some one of the United States or until he shall have been naturalized agreeably to the acts of Congress."

1862: 1862 General Statutes (G.S.), Title IX, ch. 15, § 1 and Title XIII, ch. 22, § 29:

Every taxpaying male at least 21 years of age—and every male who has reached 60 years of age and who is therefore exempt from taxation—may vote in the town and school district in which he resides.

1863: Woodcock V. Bolster, 35 Vt. 632 (1863):

SCOV held that while the Vt. Const. has been amended to require "freemen" to be U.S. citizens, "this requirement was by no means synonymous with that of a voter in town or school meeting . . . we fail to see how it would follow that a change of the constitution in relation to the qualifications of freemen should work a corresponding change in the statutes regulating voting in town and school meetings . . . It has not been questioned but that it is actually within the power of the legislature to regulate the right of voting in such meetings, and the right of holding office, according to their pleasure, and that there is nothing in the constitution restraining this exercise." Id. at 639.

1864: 1864, Acts and Resolves No. 12:

A person* may only vote in a town, city, village, or school district meeting if the person is a U.S. citizen or was a non-U.S. citizen “freeman” prior to the 1828 adoption of the Vt. Const. 1st Article of Amendment.

* Pursuant to the 1862 General Statutes (G.S.) (cited above), a “person” meant a taxpaying male at least 21 years of age or a male who has reached 60 years of age and therefore exempt from taxation.

1868: Ratification of 14th Amendment to U.S. Const.:

“All persons born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.”

1870: Ratification of 15th Amendment to U.S. Const.:

“The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.”

1880: 1880 Revised Laws (R.L.), Title 10, ch. 30, § 524:

“Women shall have the same right to vote as men have in all school district meetings, and in the election of school commissioners in towns and cities, and the same right to hold offices relating to school affairs.”

1886: Rowell v. Horton, 58 Vt. 1, 3 A. 906 (1886):

SCOV holding that the Vt. Const. requirement for officers to take oaths does not apply to municipal offices. Vt. Const. Ch. II’s plan or frame of government “has no reference to the plan or frame of town governments, nor to the election and qualification of the officers thereof. Towns are not creations of the constitution; they exist either by virtue of charters granted by the sovereign before the adoption of the constitution, or by acts of the legislature since its adoption, and derive their powers, not from constitutional provisions, but from legislative enactments.” Id. at 907.

1915: State v. Foley, 89 Vt. 193, 94 A. 841 (1915):

SCOV held that when the General Assembly changed local school district office qualifications from “male citizens” to “citizens,” it was intended to allow for female school district officers, Id. at 844, and upheld the election of a woman to a school district office, Id. at 845.

1916: Martin v. Fullam, 90 Vt. 163, 97 A. 442 (1916):

SCOV distinguished between local and general elections, stating that “the term ‘general election’ is uniformly used to designate what before had commonly been known as ‘freemen’s meeting.’” Id. at 445.

1920: Ratification of 19th Amendment to U.S. Const.:

“The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex.”

1924: Ratification of 40th Article of Amendment to Vt. Const. (1921, Prop 1) [women granted right to be “freemen”]:

“Every person of the full age of twenty-one years, who is a natural born citizen of this or some one of the United States or has been naturalized agreeably to the Acts of Congress, having resided in this state for the space of one whole year next before the election of Representatives, and who is of a quiet and peaceable behavior, and will take the following oath or affirmation, shall be entitled to all the privileges of a freeman of this state:

‘You solemnly swear (or affirm) that whenever you give your vote or suffrage, touching any matter that concerns the State of Vermont, you will do it so as in your conscience you shall judge will most conduce to the best good of the same, as established by the Constitution, without fear or favor of any man.’”

1964: Ratification of 24th Amendment to U.S. Const.:

“The right of citizens of the United States to vote in any primary or other election for President or Vice President, for electors for President or Vice President, or for Senator or Representative in Congress, shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any State by reason of failure to pay any poll tax or other tax.”

1966: Harper v. VA State Bd. of Elections, 383 U.S. 663 (1966):

“For it is enough to say that once the franchise is granted to the electorate, lines may not be drawn which are inconsistent with the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. That is to say, the right of suffrage ‘is subject to the imposition of state standards which are not discriminatory and which do not contravene any restriction that Congress, acting pursuant to its constitutional powers, has imposed.’ [citation omitted] . . . We conclude that a State violates the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment whenever it makes the affluence of the voter or payment of any fee an electoral standard. Voter qualifications have no relation to wealth nor to paying or not paying this or any other tax [noting at FN4 that only a handful of states still require a poll tax, specifically stating, “Vermont has recently eliminated the requirement that poll taxes be paid in order to vote. Act of Feb. 23, 1966, amending [24 V.S.A. § 701].”].

1970: Kohn v. Davis, 320 F. Supp. 246 (1970):

Vt. Dist. Ct. held that our previous State constitutional provision requiring a one-year residency requirement before a person could vote was an unconstitutional limit on the U.S. Const.’s right to vote and travel interstate. (Judgment affirmed by SCOTUS in Davis v. Kohn, 405 U.S. 1034 (1972).)

1971: Ratification of 26th Amendment to U.S. Const.:

“The right of citizens of the United States, who are eighteen years of age or older, to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of age.”

1974: Ratification of 47th Article of Amendment to Vt. Const. (1971, Prop VII) [“freemen” may vote at the age of 18; eliminated one-year residency requirement]:

“Every person of the full age of eighteen years who is a natural born citizen of this or some one of the United States, or who has been naturalized agreeably to the Acts of Congress, having resided in this State for the period established by the General Assembly and who is of a quiet and peaceable behavior, and will take the following oath or affirmation, shall be entitled to all the privileges of a freeman of this state:

‘You solemnly swear (or affirm) that whenever you give your vote or suffrage, touching any matter that concerns the State of Vermont, you will do it so as in your conscience you shall judge will most conduce to the best good of the same, as established by the Constitution, without fear or favor of any person.’”

1974: 1973, Acts and Resolves No. 172 (Adj. Sess.):

Provided in one statute the qualifications to vote in any election: federal, State, or local.

(Prior to this act, the qualifications to vote in State and local elections differed based on the length of time a person resided in the State or his or her town. For example, pursuant to 1971, Acts and Resolves No. 90, a U.S. citizen who was at least 18 years of age and took the voter's oath had to reside:

- in the State 30 days before the general election to vote in a presidential election;
- in the State 90 days before the general election to vote for all other general election offices; and
- in his or her town 180 days before town meeting.)

1994: Ratification of 52nd Article of Amendment to Vt. Const. (1991, Prop. 11):

SCOV uses its Vt. Const. Ch. II, § 76 gender inclusive revision authority to change all references to “freeman” and “freemen” to “voter” and “voters,” except for the subject title preceding Vt. Const. Ch. II, § 42, to which it added “AND FREEWOMEN” following “FREEMEN”.

As provided in Ch. II, § 76, the Justices’ gender inclusive revision authority “shall not alter the sense, meaning or effect of the sections of the Constitution.”

2010: Ratification of 54th Article of Amendment to Vt. Const. (2008, Prop 5) [allowing 17-year-olds to vote in the primary if they will be 18 by the general election]:

“Every person of the full age of eighteen years who is a citizen of the United States, having resided in this State for the period established by the General Assembly and who is of a quiet and peaceable behavior, and will take the following oath or affirmation, shall be entitled to all the privileges of a voter of this state:

‘You solemnly swear (or affirm) that whenever you give your vote or suffrage, touching any matter that concerns the State of Vermont, you will do it so as in your conscience you shall judge will most conduce to the best good of the same, as established by the Constitution, without fear or favor of any person.’

“Every person who will attain the full age of eighteen years by the date of the general election who is a citizen of the United States, having resided in this State for the period established by the General Assembly and who is of a quiet and peaceable behavior, and will take the oath or affirmation set forth in this section, shall be entitled to vote in the primary election.”

APPENDIX D: Election Notes Regarding H.207 As Passed by House

- Non-citizen legal residents may be elected as City officers.
 - Because H.207 would allow non-citizen legal residents of the U.S. to vote in City elections under proposed § 1501 of the charter, it appears those voters would be qualified to be elected into City office under current § 509 of the charter. Section 509 provides that at its annual meeting, Montpelier voters elect “from among the City voters” a Mayor, City Clerk, City Councilors, other elective City officers, and members of the Board of School Directors of the Montpelier-Roxbury Unified Union School District (although it appears that proposed § 1503 of the charter would prohibit these voters from voting in—and therefore being eligible to hold office for—school district elections).
 - As indicated above in the Woodcock v. Bolster, Rowell v. Horton, and State v. Foley cases, the General Assembly may establish the qualifications to both vote for and be elected to local office. With the understanding that these cases are still good law and that it is therefore constitutionally permissible for non-citizen legal residents to vote in local elections, the election of these voters to local office is also constitutionally permissible.

- H.207 Provides a Unified City Checklist Containing All City Voters.
 - H.207 As Introduced would have required the City Clerk to maintain a supplementary voter registry that contained only the non-citizen legal residents registered to vote in City elections. Sec. 2, § 1502.
 - The House amended H.207 so that instead, the City Clerk would be required to maintain a City voter checklist that contains both the U.S. citizens and non-citizen legal residents registered to vote in City elections. Sec. 2, § 1502.
 - The City Clerk would be required to keep this City checklist separate from any other voter checklist. Sec. 2, § 1502.
 - In any election involving both a City question or office and any other non-City election, the City Clerk would be required to prepare a ballot that contains only the City questions and candidates, except for justices of the peace, which are a constitutional office subject to the Vt. Const. voting qualifications. Sec. 2, § 1503.

- Protection of City Voter Information.
 - 1 V.S.A. § 317\(c\)\(31\) (PRA voter info exemptions) currently exempts from the PRA any registered voter’s month and day of birth; driver’s license or non-driver ID number; telephone number; email; and last four digits of SSN in a voter registration application.

- A voter’s citizenship status is not currently protected under this subdiv. (currently, all voters are required to be U.S. citizens).
 - 17 V.S.A. § 2154 (statewide voter checklist) was amended via 2018, No. 128 in subdiv. (b)(2) to prohibit public entities from knowingly disclosing a copy of all of the statewide voter checklist “or a municipality’s portion” of it to any foreign government or federal entity for the purpose of 1) registration; 2) public disclosure; or 3) comparison.
 - Because under H.207 the City checklist could include non-citizen City voters, the City checklist could not be used to populate the statewide voter checklist, so it would no longer be protected by this statute.
 - However, 20 V.S.A. § 4651\(b\)\(2\) and \(3\) (prohibited disclosure of personally identifying information)—enacted pursuant to 2017, No. 5—would prohibit the City from knowingly disclosing non-citizen City voters’ immigration status to any federal entity for the purpose of registering those voters on the basis of that status, and would prohibit the City from assisting a federal program that registers these voters based on that status.
 - However, 20 V.S.A. § 4651(d) acknowledges that federal law in 8 U.S.C. §§ 1373 and 1644 do not allow the State or the City to prohibit or restrict any State or City officials/entities from sending City voters’ immigration status to the federal Immigration and Naturalization Service.
- City Voters Would Still Take the Vt. Const. Voter’s Oath.
 - Under Sec. 2, § 1501, all City voters—both U.S. citizens and non-citizen legal residents—would be required to take the voter’s oath in Vt. Const. Ch. II, § 42, since it is required under 17 V.S.A. § 2121.
 - This does not appear to present any constitutional issue, because the voter’s oath is an oath that a voter will vote in his or her best judgment:

“You solemnly swear (or affirm) that whenever you give your vote or suffrage, touching any matter that concerns the State of Vermont, you will do it so as in your conscience you shall judge will most conduce to the best good of the same, as established by the Constitution, without fear or favor of any person.”
