Possess—Carry—Use Summary of Substantive Differences Between Terms

|  | Possess(Includes Actual andConstructive Possession)  | Carry   | Use  |
|--|--|---|--|
| Definitions  | "Actual possession" isphysical custody of anobject. "Constructivepossession" is when aperson, though lackingphysical custody, still hasthe power and intent toexercise control over theobject. U.S. v. Scott , 424F.3d 421 (4 th Cir. 2005);Henderson v. U.S., 135S.Ct. 1780 (2015). | Carrying a firearm in thecommission of a felony requires thatthe firearm both (1) be within easyreach or in defendant's car and (2)have the potential of facilitating thecommission of the underlying felony.United States v. Pineda-Ortuno , 952F.2d 98 (5 th Cir. 1992); State v.Carter , 156 VT. 437 (1991) | Use means an activeemployment of the firearmby the defendant, a usethat makes the firearm anoperative factor in relationto the predicate offense.Bailey v. U.S. , 516 U.S.137 (1995) |
| Firearm in bag intrunk, substantialamount ofunlawful drugs infront seat fortransaction | Yes, defendant hasdominion and control overfirearm   | Likely yes, firearm has potential to facilitate the drug transaction  | No, defendant did notactively employ firearm.Bailey, 516 U.S. at 151.   |
| Firearm in bag intrunk whiledefendantcommits DUI   | Yes, defendant hasdominion and control overfirearm   | No, firearm has no connection toDUI   | No, defendant did notactively employ firearm   |