

Thank you very much for considering changes to our annual inspection system. Minimally the system should be changed such that inspections are not required at all for the first 3-4 years of service for new vehicles because they're under warranty and unlikely to have serious issues. The Police can and should still be able to ticket someone who is driving with bald tires, broken lights etc as they represent safety risks for everyone. Inspections probably should continue to be annually for vehicles >5 years old simply because of the issues caused by our dirt roads, salt and sand.

Thanks for your consideration,

--

Dan Gottlieb